Mataafa Talks Freely of Native Politics-Malietoa's Return Desired -How the Survivors Live

By Telegraph to The Times.

APIA (Samoa), March 30, via SAN FRANCISCO, April 14.—[By the Associated Press.

After the storm had subsided and the officers and crews of the wrecked vessels had come ashore, evidence of the awful destruction was en every side. The German survivors remained in that part of the town where the property of the German Trading Company is located, but the Americans were to be seen everywhere. The officers were to be seen everywhere. The officers had lest their uniforms and were dressed as Sommon saliors.

Admiral Kimberly was the last to leave Admiral Kimberly was the last to leave the Trenton. He went at once to some rooms which had been provided for him in the house of an American resident. The Associated Press correspondent found the Admiral a few hours later sitting on the perch of a small house facing the harbor, and there was an expression of great anxiety on his face as he sat watching the wrecks of the American men-of-war.

A TALK WITH THE ADMIRAL

wrecks of the American men-of-war.

A TALK WITH THE ADMINAL.

"Is it not awful?" he remarked, as the correspondent took a seat by his side. "In all my experience on the sea I have never seen a storm to equal this one. I can hardly realize yet the full extent of the damage done. My chief anxiety now is to get these 800 or 900 saliors back to America. It would be of no use for them to remain here, and I must get them home, as quickly as possible. They must get back soom in some way."

The Admiral was asked in regard to his own experience during the storm, but had little to say of a personal nature. He continued:

"The fires in the Trenton was out at own experience during the storm, but had little to say of a personal nature. He continued:

"The fires in the Trenton went out at 10 o'clock in the morning, and our rudder and propeller were carried away at the same time. No one can realize the force with which the rudder was struck. I suppose a piece of wreeksge fouled it. The pilot-wheel whirled around with terrible velocity, every spoke in it was broken, and one of the men at the wheel had a leg broken. A great velume of water poured in upon the berth-deck through the hawse-pipea. The fireroom was soon flooded and the fires put out. The hawse-pipea should never have been placed where they were. It was a piece of faulty construction which the Government officials have been asked to remedy several times. If they had been located on the deck above, the water would not have come in. I consider this as indirectly the cause of the loss of the Trenton. After our steam gave out we used a stormsall and sent the men into the rigging and used them as saits. The ship was handled skillfully. It would have been not powerful enough. We had on every pound of steam that we could carry, and with three anchors out we were not able to hold up against the storm. We fought against it as long as we could do se, but were finally driven back upon the shore."

The Admiral spoke feelingly of the death of Capt. Schoonmaker and other officers and men who perished.

Lieut. Carlin's NARROW ESCAPE.

LIEUT. CARLIN'S NARROW ESCAPE.
Lieut. Carlin of the Vandalia probably had the most narrow escape of any man on the ship. The cabin was flooded from floor will be handed to the syndicate which guaranteed to subscribe for shares not taken by the original shareholders."

LOXDON, April 14.—The Weekly Depatch says: "William O'Brien has entered to the subscribe for the work of the colors of the co of his adventure, Carlin said: "My secape was miraculous, and I hardly know how I I got out. I was standing on the poop-deck, when a great wave knocked me through the cabin skylight. I felt myself going, threw out my hands and caught a small rope. I went down into the water and was completely submerged. I held on to the rope with one hand with all the strength I had left, and it was that alone which saved me. If the rope had broken or my grasp upon it relaxed, I would have been swept against the side of the cabin far out of reach of the skylight. The water in the cabin was swaying from one side to the other, and I would have been crushed to death or drowned if I had not drawn myself out when I did. I thought it was all up with me this time, but the vessel gave a lurch and I came out again through the skylight and drew myself on deck."

skylight and drew myself on deck."

BCHOONMAKER'S DEATH.

In speaking of the death of Capt. Schoonmaker Mr. Carlin said: "The Captain stood upon the deck the whole morning, and it was pitiful to see him. He had injured himself severely the night before, and was so weak he could hardly stand. After we struck and the waves began to wash over us I stood alongside of him and did all that I could to keep him on. He kept repeating to me that he couldn't stand it much longer and would have to go seen. I urged him to go into the rigging, but he insisted that he was not equal to the effort. He said that he could not walk across the deck to the ratilines, so I underteek to show him hew to go. I waited until a wave washed over the vessel and then I rushed across the deck and climbed a few feet into the rigging. The Captain watched me intently all the time, but there was a dublous expression on his face. I climbed down the rigging arain, and started across the deck to assist the Captain to walk over to the ratilines, but in the meantime another great see had swept over the vessel, and when I reached the spot where the Captain had been standing he was gone. The wave had knocked a machine gun against him and terced him over into the water. After that I climbed to the mizzen myself and remained there until I escaped to the deck of the Trenton."

WRECKERS KEPT BUSY.
Working parties are kept busy all the time on the wrecks of the Trenton and Vantime on the wrecks of the Trenton and Vandalia, and articles of every description have been brought ashore from the vessels and piled together in a large yard. Divers have been at work and many articles were saved in that way. The safes from both the vessels, containing a large amount of money, were recovered. The smokestack of the Yandalia has been removed and it will be placed on the Nipsic as the latter ship lost her smokestack in the collision with the Cliga. Divers have also been making an examination of the Nipsic and have discovered that her keel has been carried away. MATAAF'S GENEROUS OFFER.

MATAAY'S GENEROUS OFFER.

King Mataafa came down from his camp a few days ago. A light rain had fallen the night before, and the water had leaked into many tents occupied by the sallora. Mataafa pointed out to Admiral Kimberly the danger of sickness breaking out ameng the men on account of this exposure, and on behalf of his own people he offered to vacate all Samean houses in Apia and allow the American sallors to have the use of them. Admiral Kimberly thanked Mataafa warmly, but stated to him that it would be simost impossible to centrel the Sacres, section 16, township 5 N, range 12 W, 6. B. M.. Los Angeles county. This land lies 1 mile west of Vincent station on the Southern Pacific Railroad, and about 30 miles north of Los Angeles. It is on the Santa Clara slope, and is in the warm belt, There are wagon roads near, and it is easy of access. But all these trying evils are left behind on reaching Southern California. SAVING THE WORLD.

TALMAGE SAYS IT CAN BE DONE IN TEN YEARS.

est Centuries in the History of the World-Soul-Saving Has Got to Be Done at Short Range

BROOKLYN, April 14.—[Specially reported for THE TIMES. At the Tabernacle today, after expounding pas-sages descriptive of the world as it shall be when gospelized, Dr. Talmage gave out the bymn:
People and realms of every tongue
Dwell on His love with sweetest song.
Text, Revelations xix, 4: "Amen; Alleluia!"

The nineteenth century is departing. After it has taken a few more steps, if each year be a step, it will be gone into the eternities. In a short time we shall be in the last decade of this century, which fact makes the solemnest book outside the Bible, the almanac, and the most suggestive and most tremendous piece of machinery in all the earth, the clock. The last decade of this century upon which we shall soon enter will be the grand-est, mightiest, and most decisive de-cade in all the chronologies. I am glad it is not to come immediately, for we need by a new baptism of the Holy Ghost to prepare for it. That last ten years of the nineteenth century; may we all live to see them! Does any one say that this division of time is arbiyears of the nineteenth century; may we all live to see them! Does any one say that this division of time is arbitrary? Oh, no; in other ages the divisions of time may have been arbitrary, but our years date from Christ. Does any one say that the grouping of ten together is an arrangement arbitrary? Oh, no; next to the figure seven, ten is with God a favorite number. Abraham dwelt ten years in Canaan. Ten righteous men would have saved Sodom. In the ancient tabernacle were ten curtains, their pillars ten and their sockets ten. In the ancient temple were ten lavers and ten candlesticks and ten tables and a molten sea 10 cubits. And the commandments written on the granite of Mt. Sinai were 10, and the kingdom of God was likened unto 10 virgins, and 10 men should lay hold of him that was a Jew, and the reward of the greatly faithful is that they shall reign over 10 cities, and in the effort to take the census of the New Jerusalem the number 10 swings around the thousands, crying. "ten thousand times ten thousand." So I come to look toward the closing 10 years of the nineteenth century with an intensity of interest I can hardly describe.

Thave also noticed that the favorite time in many of the centuries for great events was the closing fragment of the century. Is America to be discovered, it must be in the last decade of the fifteenth century, namely 1492. Was free constitutional government to be well established in America, the last years of the eighteenth century must achieve it. Were three cities to be submerged by one pitch of scories, Herculaneum and Strabaiæ and Pompeii in the latter part of the first century must achieve it. Were three cities to be submerged by one pitch of scories, Herculaneum and Strabaiæ and Pompeii in the latter part of the first century must achieve it. Were three cities to be submerged by one pitch of scories, Herculaneum and Strabaiæ and Pompeii in the latter part of the first century with a bit reading deeds. The sixteenth century does the ninth century and Edward Ironsdes the eleve ment of religious independence in the United Netherlands. Aye, almost every century has had its peroration of overtowering achievements. As the closing years of the centuries seem a favorite time for great scenes of emancipation or disaster, and as the number ten seems a favorite number in the scriptures written by divine direction, and as we are soon to enter upon the last ten years of the nineteenth century, what does the world propose? What does the church of Christ propose? What does the church of Christ propose? What does the world propose? I know not; but now in the presence of this consecrated assembly I propose that we make ready, get all our batteries planted and all our plans well laid in what remains of this decade, and then in the last decade of the nineteenth century march up and laid in what remains of this decade, and then in the last decade of the nineteenth century march up and take this round world for God.

When I say we, I mean the five hundred the second of the secon victory, and am willing to be the appetending on some blind eye and tall personal on a some blind eye and tall personal on the source of the personal on the source of the or nervous temperament, or lymphatic temperament. The Episcopal Church will do its most effective work with those who by taste prefer the stately and ritualistic. The Methodist Church those who by taste prefer the stately and ritualistic. The Methodist Church will do its best werk among the emotional and demonstrative. The Presbyterian Church will do its best work among those who like strong doctrine and the stately service softened by the emotional. So each denomination will have certain kinds of people whom it will especially affect. So let the work be divided up. There are seven hundred and fifty thousand Christians of the Presbyterian Church North, and other hundreds of thousands in the Presbyterian Church South, and all foreign Presbyterians, more especially Scotch, English and Irish, making, I guess, about two million Presbyterians. The Methodist Church is still larger; the Church of England on both sides of the sea still larger, and many other denominations as much, if not more, consecrated than any I have mentioned. Divide up the world's evangelization among these denominations after they are persuaded it can be done before the nineteenth century is dead, and the last Hottentot, the last Turk, the last Japanese, the last American, the last European, the last Asiatic, the last African will see the salvation of God before he sees the opening gate of the twentieth century.

EVERYTHING IS IN CONDITION FOR

Again, I feel the whole world can be saved in the time specified, because we have all manner of machinery requisite. It is not as though we had requisite. It is not as though we had to build the printing presses; they are to build the printing presses; they are all built and running day and night, those printing religious papers (925 of those religious papers in this country), those printing religious books. And those printing religious books. And thousands of printing presses now in the service of the devil could be brought and set to work in the service of God. Why was the printing press invented? To turn out billheads and circulars of patent medicines, and tell the news which in three weeks will be of no importance? From the old-time Franklin printing press on up to the Lord Stanhope press and the Washington press and the Victory press to Franklin printing press on up to the Lord Stanhope press and the Washing ton press and the Victory press to Hoe's perfecting printing press, that machine has been improving for its best work and its final work namely, the publication of the glad tidings of great joy which shall be to all people. We have the presses, or can have them before the first of January when the new decade is to begin, enough to put a Bible in the hand of every son and daughter of Adam and Eve now living, and if such person cannot read, we

EVERYTHING IS IN CONDITION FOR THE CONSUMMATION

For missionary to read it to him or far.

But this brings me to the adjoining hought, namely, we have the money be do the work. I mean the fifty mills on of Christians have it, and he dam which is beginning to leak making doods of hundreds and fitty our thousand Christians have it, and he dam which is beginning to leak making doods of hundreds and mills on sand billions of dollars in hot contibution when you persuade the realthy men of the kingdom of God hat the speedy conversion of the world is a possibility, and that Isaiah and Ezckele and Daniel and John will not stand in the way of it, but help it in.

I have no sympathy with this and Ezckele and Daniel and John will to stand in the way of it, but help it in.

I have no sympathy with this in, and Ezckele and Daniel and John will to stand in the way of it, but help it in.

I have no sympathy with this in, and Ezckele and Daniel and John will to stand in the way of it, but help it in.

I have no sympathy with this in, and Ezckele and Daniel and John will to said and the way of the well and the stand in the reason of the control of the well and the stand in the reason of the well that there is a possibility for help the world is converted we would ke allowed to come out on the battle nents of heaven and see the banners of heaven and heaven the search of heaven and heaven the search of heaven and heaven the search build churches and support missionaries under God in ten years to save the world.

Again, I think that the world's evangelization can be achieved in the time specified, because we have already the theological institutions necessary for this work. We do not have to build them; they are built, and they are filled with tens of thousands of young men, and there will be three sets of students who will graduate into the ministry before the close of this century, and once have them understand that instead of preaching thirty or forty years and taking into the kingdom of God a few hundred souls, right before them is the Sedan, is the Armageddon, and these young men, instead of entering the ministry timid and with apologetic air, will feel like David, who came up just as the armies were set in array, and he left his carriage and shouted for the battle and cried, "Who is this uncircumcised Philistine that he should defy the armies of the living God?" and with five gravel stones skillfully flung sent sprawling the bragging tenfooter, his mouth into the dust and his heels into the air.

WHAT NOBLER CLOSE TO A GREAT CENTURY?

My friends, what but such a consummation could be a fit climax to this century? You notice a tendency in history and all about us to a climax. The creation week rising from herbs fish and from fish to bird and from telegraph and the clatter of the first sewing machine, and saw the flash of the first electric light and the revolution of the first steam plow; and the law of storms was written; and the American Bible Society were born; and instead of an audience laughing down Dr. Carey for advocating foreign missions, as was done at Northampton, in England, in the last century, now all denominations vying with each other as to who shall go the furthest and the sconestinto the darkest of the New Hebrides; and three hundred thousand souls have been born to God in the South Sea islands, and Micronesio and Melanesia and Malayan Polynesia have been set in the crown of Christ, and David Livingstone has unveiled Africa, and the last bolted gate of barbaric nations has swung wide open to let the Gospel in. What, I asked, with a thousand interrogation points uplifted, can be a fit, an appropriate and sufficient climax except it be a world redeemed?

Yes; I believe it can be done if we get prepared for it, because the whole air and the whole heaven is filled with willing help. "Are they not all ministering spirits sent forth?" We make an awful mistake if we calculate only on the forces we can see. The mightiest army is in the air. My brethren, so much of selfishness and pride and rivalry and bad motives of all kinds get into our work here that we are hindered. But the mighty souls that have gone up to the flying armies of the sky have left all imperfection behind; and these souls are with us and without a fault and with perfect natures are on our side. You cannot make me believe that after toiling here for long years for the redemption of the world, until from exhaustion some of them fell into their graves, they have ceased their interest in the stupendous conflict now raging, or that they are going to feeline their help. Irensus Prime! Honored on earth but now glorified in heaven, have you forgotten the millions of India for whome salvation you suffered in Hindoo jungle and thundered on missionary platform? No! Then come down and hel a credit to the city and to the associa-tion. The association now numbers about sixty members, and desires all reliable breeders and fanciers to join the association. A. M. Morros, a little Greek who keeps a fruit store at No. 10 North Main street, and Andrew Vital were arrested by Officers Schencke and Smith yesterday morning for fighting. Morros, in addition to his fruit store, keeps a lodging house, where Vital took a room. From some cause Morros did not desire his patronage and requested him to vacate. He did so, but bird to quadruped and from quadruped to immortal man. The New Testament rising from quiet genealogical table in Matthew to apocalyptic doxology in Revelation. Now, what can be an appropriate climax to this century, which has heard the puff of the first steamer and the throb of the first steamer and the click of the first stelegraph and the clatter of the first ste necessary coin, was compelled to remain in jall. Morros has been before the courts a number of times, and gained a good deal of notoriety in connection with the successful fight he made to keep his fruit stand in the "city hole," where the Bonebrake-Bryson block now stands.

A ROUND half dozen of States-Massachusetts, Montana, Indiana, Rhode Island, Wisconsin and Tennessee-have now adopted some form of the Australian system. One great difficulty in the way is that currency of Mexico is silver; another difficulty is that there is no domestic order system in Mexico. THERE is a very animated contest for the position of Adjutant-General and Assistant Adjutant-General of the United States Army, made vacant some months ago by the retirement of Gen. Drum and the promotions which follow. It has been supposed and still is supposed by army efficers that Gen. Kelton will be promoted to succeed Gen. Drum, both on account of his ability and personal popularity, and the fact that his promotion will establish a precedent which army officers much desire to have established. If Gen. Kelton should receive the place, the principle would seem to be recognized by the Administration that army officers should be promoted according to their standing on the registers.

THE New York, Herald has the fol-lowing to say regarding the Presilowing to say regarding the President's appointments:

The nominations so far submitted by President Harrison to the Senate have been for the most part excellent. It has been generally remarked that two or three about whose propriety there was reasonable doubt was confirmed by the Senate without objection or hesitation. We hope the President, without seeking a quarrel with the Senate, will stand by his own constitutional duty and right. To help him in that course he would do well to refuse to hear Senators, Representatives, or any one else on patronage business, but require all applications for office to be nade in writing, with all the recommendations and indorsements, Senatorial and otherwise. If then he will order that all such applications and accompanying papers shall be open to inspection by the press, and to publication, he will have no further difficulty. He will be relieved of a burden which he and his Cabinet officers aiready find intolerable.

From time to time desultory efforts

FROM time to time desultory efforts have been made to introduce silk culture in California. The climate and soil are perfectly adapted to the in-dustry. Within half a mile of this office is a large mulberry tree, the berries on which are already turning color. The chief difficulty encountered has been that of labor. It is an industry which is particularly suited to women. The report of the National women's Silk. Culture Association shows that during the year nearly 2500 pounds of cocoons were bought of 168 persons in various States, and there were distributed 2628 mulberry. trees to nineteen States. It says the United States could in a short time raise its own silk, gaining $50,000,000

GIVE THEM A SHOW!

There is an attempt in certain quarters which ,profess respectability, to arouse antagonism against the present Board of Police Commission under the pretext that the members are not sufficiently devoted to the cause of reform. This effort goes so far as an attempt to get the Council to overthrow the present condition of affairs ,and effect a complete change in the board.

Now, what is the foundation for hese complaints? Where do they originate?

If we regard the work of the present board without prejudice we must admit that, while they may not have accomplished very much, they have certainly done something in the direction of reform, which is more than many of their predecessors have done.

It is a fact that $60,000 a year in boodle has been going into private hands for several years past. An at-tempt to stop this corruption would naturally cause trouble. It is evident that the police administration has made a determined effort to do away with this boodle business, and that it is also trying to stop gambling. The games are now closed, and the Chief says he intends to keep them closed. Right on top of this desirable im-provement, modest as it may be, comes a demand for a change—for the re-moval of the commissioners. What are they to be removed for? If for not going far enough with their re-form, then we will not object, if the complainants are quite sure that they can put in men who will do better. If, however, they are to be removed because they have done so much as they have done to purify the city, then respectable citizens will most emphatically object to see the city gov-ernment playing into the hands of the had element.

Give the Police Commissioners show! For the first time in several years they seem determined to make a bona fide step in the right direction. Let them have a chance to prove that they mean business. The man who refuses to do this lays himself open to the suspicion that the reform which CHARLESTON, S. C., is enjoying he so loudly demands is of the back-quite a real-estate boom, founded on ward variety.

COMMISSIONER BATES ON SAMOA

Recent dispatches from Germany have announced that the Government of that country is far from pleased with the appointment of George H. Bates as one of the commissioners to the Berlin conference on Samoan af fairs. Mr. Bates has had an extensive experience in the South Seas, where he was sent by Secretary Bayard in 1886. The reason for the objections of the Germans to Mr. Bates may be under stood by a perusal of an interesting article on the Samoan question which he contributes to the Century for April, and which was undoubtedly written long before his appointment as a commissioner to Berlin.

Mr. Bates commences by showing that, as the result of treaty relations. the representatives of the United States, Great Britain and Germany have, from 1879 to the disruption of the municipal government by Ger many, carried on a tolerably efficient municipal government in the district of Apia. He then takes up the question whether intervention in Samoar affairs is within the limits of the Mon roe doctrine, and concludes that the uniform course of our diplomacy negatives the idea that the application of the Monroe doctrine is merely con tinental.

On the subject of our interest in the Southwestern Pacific—a subject not very generally understood—Mr. Bates has the following very conclusive and satisfactory arguments:

satisfactory arguments:

The question what interest have we in Samoa is not a difficult one to answer. In the first place, we are committed to the Samoans to see to it that no final disposition of their Government shall be made without our assent. The diplomatic correspondence on this subject between our Government and the Governments of Creat Britain and, Germany, and the conduct of our official representatives in Samoa are susceptible of no other interpretation than that, whether rightly or wrongly, we have assumed the fosition that no adjustment of the internal, fifairs of camoa should be made except by the consent of our Government as one of the three treaty powers. From this position it is impossible for us to retreat without dishonor.

Again, intervention is necessary for the protection of the persons and property of our own citizens residing in that country. It has been abundantly demenstrated that these are not safe with Germany dominating a so-called Samoan Government.

But above and beyond the mere property interests of individual Americans is the greater national interest for the preservation of the Pacific. No better illustration could be had of this than the fact that, having in 1837 exhausted the supply of coal which we sent to the harbor of Pago Paco during President Grant's Administration, our single naval vessel at Apia was obliged to send 2500 miles to Sydney for coal; and when events recently required our Government to send, three or four war vessels to Samoa, it was also necessary to send a naval vessel as a store-ship, with coal as a deck-load.

But the crowning interest of the United States in preserving the neutrality of Samoa grows out of its commanding position in the Pacific. This has been already stated, but can be better appreciated by observing it on a globe or map than from any written statement. In a comparatively recent diplomatic paper Hawaii was said to be the key of maritime dominion in the Pacific. This was true under the evercinon of the trade winds making Honoiouiu a necess

The article proceeds to show that the construction of an isthmian canal is now a mere matter of time, and that when the world's commerce floats through such a channel Hawaii will resign to Samoa the key to the mari-time dominion of the Pacific. Then, again, we have by official utterances led Samoa to rely upon our assurances, and that tied the hands of the King whom we recognized until he was kidnaped. The following trenchant paragraphs from the article were doubt-less specially unwelcome to the Ger-

The course pursued by Germany, the in-mits to our citizens and our flar, and more-than all to our Government itself, in de-selving us with assurances that were belied by simultaneous inconsistent action, car-isinly should forbid further efforts in the direction of cooperative action until dis-citations are accompanied with "fruits meet for repentance."

cialmers are accompanied with for repentance."

The tearing down and treading under foot of the emblem of our nationality in a private house by German saliors, may not be technically a casus belli, but it might be considered, when encouraged by local offi-cials, as sufficient reason for intermitting the ordinary diplomatic assurances of our distinguished consideration.

As to the method of intervention which this country should adopt, Mr. Bates thinks we should require the restoration of the status quo, existing when we were in conference with Great Britain and Germany, which would involve the return of Malietoa, and to make our demands in a tone which the German Chancellor could not misunderstand. The article concludes by showing that there are ample precedents for armed interference by the navy to prevent such indignities to their persons and injury to their property as Americans in Samoa have

It is very evident that Mr. Bates win be a commissioner who will stand up firmly and intelligently for the rights and honor of the United States. That the Germans do not like his appointment matters little. He does not go to represent the interests of Germany, but those of the United States.

POSTOFFICE APPOINTMENTS.

The Congressmen who are in waiting for the minor postoffices are not yet quite clear what the policy of the Administration is to be as to removals. They have been given to understand that the fact that the incumbent is a Democrat will not be of itself of sufficient ground for removal, and that it will be generally necessary to pronounce charges to secure the removal of postmasters whose commissions have only a few months to run. The Congressmen are busying themselves just now to discover what the department will be apt to consider as "charges" upon which a removal can be based. A Congressman who has paid some attention to this subject says that he has reason to believe that a postmaster will be removed if any of these points can be successfully raised against him: Inattention to public business; extremely offensive parti-sanship, although the term offensive partisanship is scarcely to be the pass-word in this Administration; keeping a postoffice in a place where liquor is old. This last reason is not the re sult of the recent prohibition speech of the Postmaster-General; on the contrary, it is a prohibition which is contained in the postal regulations, although it has not in recent years been very strictly enforced. If put into effect now the result may be some postoffices will be removed from one corner grocery to another.

OUR ORANGES.

Referring to a recent comment in these columns on the tendency of Sacramento to claim through ship ments of fruit from Southern California to the East as her own product, the Sacramento Bee says:

the Sacramento Bee says:

Sacramento may be quite as good at claiming things as The Times suggests, but if the Los Angeles oranges that have been seen in this market are samples of the general product we will not claim them as our own. The Los Angeles oranges that we have seen are so thoroughly befouled with black scale that we don't believe there will be any general rivalry of sections to claim them as their products.

This is very easily explained. There is such a big demand for our choice oranges in the East that the product of orchards is eagerly bought up by commission houses while on the trees satisfactory arguments:

The question what interest have we in to picking, packing and shipping.

Los. ANGELES THEATRE -Because great woman made a great success of the rôle of "Meg Merrilles," it has become a stock thing to give it from time to time. The deficiencies of the play as a whole are so extreme that the small time given up to the character of "Meg Merrilles" would not suffice, were the performance almost marvelous.

suffice, were the performance almost marvelous.

Mme. Janauschek is absolute mistress of her every attitude and gesture, and as the rôle of "Meg Merrilles" consists almost wholly of fine posing and an intense expression, every moment of her presence was interesting and at times thrillingly felt. To wait for her appearance through a long act and half of another, unrelieved by a bit of acting above a very common average, is a trial to any but the best brand of patience, and hardly what the amusement lover expects.

Tonight "Mary Stuart" will be given, and in this noble play Mme. Janauschek has something worthy of her art.

Gen. Harrison will soon be as well known as Gen. Grant was on the streets of Washington. The night of his arrival he walked as far as the Capitol, and his route was along Pennsylvania avenue. Testerday he visited the National Observatory on foot, and afterwards took a long walk in the upper part of the city. This is in strong contrast to Mr. Cleveland's habit. It was once reported that he walked as far as the Washington Monument, which is about ten minutes in time from the White House for a slow-moving person. This report was never verified. On another occasion he walked with Secretary Fair-child several blocks westward from the White House. This is known. But as a rule he was never seen on foot. Gen. Grant and his cigar were familiar objects on Pennsylvania avenue. As a result the people always feit near to him. Gen. Harrison will lose nothing in public estimation by this habitual appearance upon promenades of the Capitol.

He Will Do So.

men if they were scattered around among the native bouses.

There is no immediate danger of provisions being exhausted. Several parties have taken advantage of the helpless condition of the shipwrecked men and have made a strong advance in the price of necessary articles. Before the storm also business men here were giving a premium of 30 and 35 per cent, for United States gold in exchange for South American silver, which is the currency in use here. But in the last week merchants have forced the rate of exchange down to 20 per cent.

How the SURVIVORS LIVE.

how the survivors Live.

The officers and men of the Vandalia lost nearly everything, and a great many on the Trenton fared but little better. The offi-Trenton fared but little better. The officers are scattered all over the town and have secured such accommodations as they can find. Many are living in native flouses. There has been no local government in Apia for many months, owing to the wars between natives. Consequently the sanitary condition of the town is very poor. The little streams are choked up with vegetation that has been allowed to grow without check and garbage is emptied everywhere. The men are obliged to work to the wrecks in the hot sun and there is considerable danger of fever.

Although 146 men lost their lives during the storm, there had not been more than 40 the storm, there had not been more than 40 bodies recovered. For the first day or two the bodies of Americans were buried in the emetery connected with the London Mission, and the bodies of the Germans were buried in the French Catholic cemetery. But it soon became impossible to continue this, and owing to the warm climate it was necessary to bury them where they were found. A number of rough coffins were made, but a number of bodies were buried in native mats. Some of the bodies were borribly nutilated by beating for hours against the corral reefs.

Paymaster Arms's body was recovered two days after the storm. It was positively identified by clothing and a ring which he wore.

Some natives also found a body about the same time four miles up the coast, and from the description which they zave it was believed to be that of Capt. Schoonmaker, but the identification was not positive.

The bodies of Lieut. Sutton and Pay Clerk Roach have not been discovered.

On Friday, March 22d, the Germans held a memorial service at the French Catholic Church. Admiral Kimberly, Capt. Farquhar. Consul Blakelock and many other Americans attended, and guards of honor from the United States war ships were also present. American memorial services were held on Sunday morning, March 24th, in the larce yard in which the Trenton men have their quarters. The services were very brief, and were conducted by Chaplain McAllister of the Trenton. Over 700 men from the American menof-war were present, but none of the German efficers attended.

THE FOLITICAL SITUATION UNCHANGED.

THE POLITICAL SITUATION UNCHANGED The storm does not seem to have changed the political situation of Samoa so far as the natives are concerned. Both parties are still encamped in the same positions they have occupied for several months past.

APIA. (Samoa), March 30, via San Francrico, Agril-14j- [By the Associated Press.]

The Associated Press correspondent had an interview with Mataafa and his principal hiefs prior to the great storm, in regard to be proposed Berlin conference. The King chiefs prior to the great storm, in regard to the proposed Berlin conference. The King discussed the matter freely, but answered all inquiries with great deliberation. He expressed a strong desire that the American and British representatives might be able to effect a solution of the present difficulty, restore the former Samoan government and insure peace and prosperity to the islands.
Matasfa declared that he had nothing to home from Germany, that all the ware Matasia declared that he had nothing to hope from Germany, that all the wars among the natives in Samoa and the bloodshed which had occurred during the last few months were due to German interference, and that the German representatives here had made so many misstatements that he could no longer place any confidence in their promises or their professed desired.

AMUSEMENTS.

Mataafa showed the correspondent the reignial letter written to him by Dr.
Kaappe, the German Consul, after the recent fight between the Germans and Samoans, in which letter the Consul addressed Mataafa as "Your Majesty, the King," declared that he desired that there be no more war between Germany and Samos, and made the proposal that "the Samoans should rule over things on the islands pertaining to Samos, and that Germany should rule eyer things pertaining to foreigners."
Mataafa did not reply to Knappe's last letter making the proposition for a dual government.

TRUSTING TO AMERICAN AID. At the time this interview was held with Matanfa the Trenton with Admiral Kim-perly on board had not reached Apla, and Matasia the Trenton with Admiral Kimberly on board had not reached Apia, and the natives were looking forward eagerly to the Admiral's arrival. Matasia was asked by a correspondent if he expected assistance from the American Admiral, and he replied promptly that he was looking for such assistance. He did not say that he expected the Admiral to act as his ally in making war upon the Germans; in fact, he disavowed any desire to carry on a war against the Germans, or even against Taniesees's forces. His chief desire seemed to be to bring the strife to a close as quickly as possible, and to allow the 6000 warriors now encamped behind the breastworks to return to their homes and families and resume the peaceful occupations which they followed before King Malletoa was carried off by the German forces. Matasia stated that the assistance he expected from Admiral Kimberly he believed would come in the form of an emphatic protest against any further German interference. He believed the Admiral would force the Germans to cease their operations against the natives, and also require them to render no more assistance to Tamasese, which must thereby, bring the war, to a the believed the Admiral would force the Germans to cease their operations against the natives, and also require them to render no more assistance to Tamasese, which must thereby hring the war to a close, as Tamasese's forces warn so greatly reduced that without assistance from the Germans there was but liftle or nothing to fear from them.

Mataafa is a large, finely proportioned man, and is about 50 years of age. He is regarded by the white residents of Samoa as far superior to his predecessor.

MATAAFA AND MALIETOA.

The Associated Press correspondent called on Mataafa on the day after the arrival of Admiral Kimberly. The King said it was the happiest day of the year for all Samoans. Mataafa was asked to express his views in regard to the possibility of the return to Samoa of ex-King Mailetoa, who is now held as a prisoner on the Marshall Islands by the Germans. Mataafa was asked if he would be satisfied to see Mailetoa brought back to Samoa.

"I would be most happy to see him back in Samoa," replied the King.

"I'm case of Mailetoa's return would he be entitled to resume his former place as King of Samoa."

"I'm not able to answer that," replied Mataafa. "I am a member of Mailetoa's family, and at the time he was deposed by the Germans I was his principal chief. Just before he surrendred to time German commander he handed over his office to me and left the administration of affairs in my a majority of the Samoan people. In view of the fact that Malietoa resigned his office in my favor, he will not necessarily become king again in case he returns to his native land. Malietoa and myself would have to determine between ourselves who should be King, and if he should return here we would at once hold a conference for that purpose. I feel sure there would be no serious controversy between us."

NO ONE TO BLAME.

What Naval Officials Say of the Disaster.

Washindron, April 14.—[By the Associated Press.] The long and graphic report of the disaster at Samoa was read with a great deal of interest here. Naval officers generally were of the opinion this evening that no blame could be attached to any one for the loss of ships and life. They were not inclined to hazard any decided opinion in regard to the bandling of the various in regard to the handling of the various vessels. Commodore Walker, Chief of the Bureau of Navigation and Acting Secretary of the Navy, probably voiced the general feeling when he said to an Associated Press reporter tonight:

"Any man who gives an opinion is simply guessing. We do not know just how matters stood, and it would be merely guession when the said to the manual terms to say what might have been done. It is impossible to tell much about it. There were some fine men, excelient officers, on the ships, and we know that the vessels were lost. Admiral Kimberly is a snieadid officer and a fine man, and Capt. Farquhar, and Commander Mullan as well as Capt. Schoonmaker of the Vandalia, who lost his life, are excellent officers. They doubtless did all they could. I think probably there is no blame to be attached to any one."

Commodore Walker thought the escape of the Calliope was largely a matter of luck. "She probably owed her survival," he said, "to the fact that she had more steam power than the other vessels. The dispatches show that she had a very hard time working out of the harbor, only making about haif a mile an hour. Again the Calliope may have been more favorably placed than the German and American vessels. Our vessels may not have been able to go against the fearful gale, and even it they had been it may be they were not able to turn round so as to go out. But we cannot tell all. It is all guess work."

"The management of the vessels." Commodore Walker said, "seems to have been about the same after the hurricane struck them. The mistake that seems to have been about the same after the hurricane struck them. The mistake that seems to have been made was in staying inside the harbor, but that was a case of our hindsight being better than our front. The vessels may not have had time to get out. There is no telling, though, but what some of the vessels might have gone down with all on board even if they had put to sea. It is probable, however, that they would have pulled through. But there the judgmen

How the Trombone's Young Man Got

The Trombone took the bait, as it was expected it would, and yesterday morning electrified its 13 rea "reasonably well authenticated theme for the capture of Lower California." Of course there is nothing in the story; it is a fake pure and simple, and so absurd that no one but the veriest tyro would bite at it.

To begin at the beginning, it start and so absurd that no one but the veriest tyro would bite at it.

To begin at the beginning, it started some days ago in a conversation between a local newspaper man, at present disengaged, and J. K. Mulkey, an old-time newspaper man from Louisville, Ky., who for the past four years has been engaged in real estate transactions on this coast. Mulkey is interested in the Masac concessions in Lower California, and is also the agent for a patent dry washer for taking out gold. Mulkey comes from the same State as the famous liar, Joe Mulhatton, and when he is in a talkative mood can give the able Joe a close race for first place in single-handed prevarication. Mulkey, while talking about the gold fields suggested how easy it would be to scoop the coveted territory, and outlined a plausible scheme, from a theoretical standpoint, of how it could be accomplished. The local newspaper man thought it would be a good scheme to write the story up as a sensation and send it east as a big special. Mulkey could not see it in that light, and after one or two attempts to get him to consent the matter was dropped.

Saturday night, however, about 10 o'clock a hack drove up to Mr. Mulkey's residence at the corner of Ocean and Bush avennes and a young man alighted. Mr. Mulkey had retired, but on being told that a newspaper reporter wanted to see him he got up and admitted the visitor. The young man introduced himself as a Trombone reporter, and after a few questions asked Mr. Mulkey for a position under him on the filibustering expedition, as he understood he was at the head of it. Mulkey, to keep up the joke, told him he could not tell him much, but enjoined secrecy, which the young man said would be observed, and talked a liftle while with lim, when the reporter reëntered his carriage and returned to the city.

Mr. Mulkey also came down town, and in a few minutes The Times was in possession of the whole thing.

SAN FRANCISCO, April 14.—An uninteresting, but rather closely contested game, was played this afternoon at the Haightstreet grounds between the San Franciscos and Sacramentos. The home team again came off victorious, by a score of 12 to 10. Incell occupied the box for the San Franciscos and pitched a very poor game, strking out only one man, giving five bases on called balls and allowing nine hits off his delivery. He was given good support behind the bat by Sweet. Burke occupied the box for the Capitol City nine and like Incell pitched a poor game. they are appointed, except for specific cause. What the lawyer said cannot be learned, but whatever it was it was communicated to several other members, and it is probable that they will be governed by his advice.

At any rate the story is common street talk among the politicians, and they seem to think that there is a good deal in it. Just why they want any one or more of the commissioners removed is not stated, in fact all hands are very reticent, and nothing can be given that is reliable.

Some say that the movement emanates from the gamblers, who are greatly disgruntled over the closing of the fare games.

THAT IS WHY HON. JOHN B HASKINS WAS TAKEN IN.

An Old-time Friend Makes a Study of His Case and Finds Out Just Where the Trouble Lies-Who

The recent escapade of the Hon. ohn B. Haskins of New York, who was taken in by a gang of local bunco sharps and robbed of $130 in money, and inveigled into giving his checks for $5000 more, is fresh in the minds of Los Angeles people, for the reason that the incidents have been rehearsed repeatedly in connection with reports of the examination of the bunco gang

"About four years ago," continued Mr. Baldridge, "Mr. Haskins suffered a stroke of paralysis, the physical effects of which are still slightly manifested in his left limb and side. He waiks a little lame, and it is necessary to help him up a step or on a car. You know, of course, that the seat of this malady is in the brain and a peculiarity is that it affects the knowing faculties. A man who has been stricken is apt to think that he is just as good mentally as ever, but he is not. There is no use of trying to convince him of his mistake, however; you will end by quarreling with him.

"Well, that is what alls my old friend Haskins. He has been touched in the head by that paralysis, and he is subject to these semi-conscious fits. I think it is not safe to leave him to travel around the country alone. At the same time I am glad to be able to offer this explanation as it will exonerate him in the minds of the public from any moral obliquity for engaging in a gambling game. I didn't know that he has lofty ideas on the subject, but in his right mind he certainly knows better than dabble in a game he don't understand. He is no card player."

The reporter then questioned Mr. Baldridge further as to the status of Mr. Haskins at his home.

"You would have a member of Congress for several terms, and he knows all the prominent politicians in the country. He has be-n accounted one of the shrewdest lobbyists at Albany or at the National Capitol. He was a member of Congress for several terms, and he knows all the prominent politicians in the country. He has be-n accounted one of the shrewdest lobbyists at Albany or at the National Capitol. He was a Bouglas Democrat up to the breaking out of the war, when Democracy came to mean secession, and then he switched off. He voted for Harrison at the last election. He has traveled all over the world and I don't know of anybody who is more interesting and instructive in an hour's conversation.

"Yes, he is a man of great wealth. He received from his father a farm of ing and instructive in an hour's conversation.

"Yes, he is a man of great wealth. He received from his father a farm of 42 acres, which now lies in the Twenty-fourth Ward of New York city—out there among the Havemeyers, the Claffins and other millionaire nabobs. He holds about 800 lots, and has about 75 houses, with a rent roll of $50,000 a year. He is worth at least $6,000,000 or $8,000,000. The business is now attended to by John B. Haskins, Jr., a son of the gentleman. I think the son ought to be fully advised of his father's condition.

"Mr. Haskins is now in San Francisco visiting Jim Phelan, an old friend and himself twenty times a millionaire. He will no doubt come back here, and I shall urge him to remain and testify against the swindlers who took advantage of his unfortunate mental condition."

A rather Indicrous incident of the affair was mentioned by Mr. Haldridge and is now given to the public for the first time.

Charles A. Dana, editor of the New York Sun, is a warm personal friend of Mr. Haskins. When he heard of the bunco episode, he telegraphed to THE TIMES for full particulars, which were wired him and published in the Sun. The next day he sent the following telegram to Mr. Haskins.

Coroner Meredith held an inques yesterday morning on the body of Annie Peters, the woman shot by Charles Scott Friday morning. about 11 o'clock Thursday night, and had a small bottle filled with whisky and gum. He then lett, and he knew nothing more about him until the Chinaman came into his place the next day, and asked him to go and see what had happened, when he found the woman lying dead in her bed, and Scott wounded lying beside her.

Dr. Choate testified to being called to attend the case professionally. He found the woman dead, having been shot in the head, and Scott wounded. He had ordered the usual treatment in such cases. He had afterward made a post-mortem on the body of the woman, and found that death had been caused from a gunshot wound in the side of the head. He thought the woman had not moved after she was shot. The bullet was found imbedded in the bone, having passed through the brain.

The jury after hearing the evidence consulted a few minutes, after which they returned a verdict that the deceased, "Hortense Vaudoarne," alias Annie Lebrun, alias Anna Scott, native of France, aged 38 years, and married, came to her death from a gunshot wound in the head inflicted with a revolver, and whether the said shot was fired by the deceased or Charles Scott, or a person or persons unknown, we the jury, have no means of knowing."

The body of the dead woman was embalmed and shipped to San Francisco yesterday at 1 o'clock, where her sister resides.

There was no change in Scott's condition yesterday, except that he complained of being much weaker, and spoke of pains in the head. He was rather nervous yesterday afternoon, and called for brandy almost constantly. He took a fair amount of nourishment, however. A policeman is on guard at the place constantly to prevent his being moved, and will be kept there until he either dies or recovers sufficiently to be brought to jail. No one is allowed in the room except the attendants.

How Washington Women Dress

trow washington women bress.

(From the Philadelphia Telegraph's Washington Letter!

There is very 'little fine dressing among women in Washington. This statement will probably astonish people who for years have been reading glowing accounts of brilliant society events at the capital, but this true. Some women here dress very elaborately and in many new dresses, but these are few and are conspicuous among their associates. A person who has been reading long descriptions of dresses might look in vain for the gorgeous array that has been pictured to them. About nine out of ten of the women seen at the evening receptions may be identified from one time and another by their dresses, and toward the end of the season the eye is met by a draggled and disreputable lot of gowns. The immense crowds that assemble at receptions here, and the bad manners so often met with, discourage fine dressing on the part of women of experience, except on very select occasions. It is the habit of fashionable women, unless they are to be of the receiving party, to put on none but their old evening gowns to attend a reception at the White House. The poorest dresses anywhere are to be seen in the east room during any of the large formal receptions. At a very [From the Philadelphia Telegraph's Washing-ton Letter 1

PASADENA, April 14 .- [Correspondence of THE TIMES.] On Wednesday morning next, the great Raymond Hotel closes its doors, after a successful season. The season opened on the 15th day of last November, and from that time until this, between 6000 and 7000 people have scratched their autographs on the hotel register. The first tourist whose name appears was R. Knighton of Chicago. The close of this season witnesses the departure of Col. C. H. Merrill, the efficient and obliging manager. That gentleman retires to private life with his family at their elegant residence, about forty miles from Boston. Mr. Merrill's place will not be an easy one to fill, and his presence will be missed as a familiar figure by the army of tourists who will again flock another year to the Pacific caravansary.

A CHANGE. Tomorrow afternoon a change will be made in the handling of THE TIMES in this city. Charles S. Tallmadge, Jr., has disposed of his interest to Mr. S. Monroe McPherron, who will assume control on Tuesday morning. The news route agent, who was formerly with the Harper-Reynolds Company of Los Angeles, comes here with a character established for business efficiency and personal worth. He will continue that courteous treatment to patrons which has been a marked feature of the success made by Mr. Tallmadge during his connection with the service. John W. Jones, the regular correspondent, will be retained, and will endeavor to keep his department fully up to the standard of the past. Mr. Tallmadge leaves shortly for Oklahoma to find new pastures. He deserves success in any in this city. Charles S. Tallmadge, Golden Gates Ajar—The Broad River—The Angel of Death— Mary Sets Out Again on Her Journey-The Escape.

CHAPTER XII.

Now the walk down the lane was a leasant one, and there were fruit trees wing on either side, on some o which grew the apples of Hope, of which they did eat and were refreshed. There, too, were the sweet grapes of repentance, which were fully ripe, and the figs of gladness hung heavy from the boughs. Shame followed a little way after them, when he saw that their faces were steadily set toward the wicket gate, and he did taunt the young woman with her misdeeds, and tell her that she was no more fit to be numbered with right-doers. And he almost persuaded her that nothing could take the stains from her garments. And while she wept at his words she heard a voice saying, "Though your sins be as scarlet, they shall be whiter than snow." Then she took courage and bade Shame fiee from her. And behold, her garments, which had been covered with spots, were now without stain. Then she said to Mary: "I will never go back again to the castle, but I will serve the King, for his service is better than life."

And when they reached the wicketgate it opened before them, yet they saw no one. And Duty welcomed them both to her palace, and she gave to the woman a pleasant chamber where she might rest. And she said to Mary, "Go thou into the chamber of Peace, after thou hast refreshed thyself from my table. Drink thou of the milk of gladness, and eat of the grapes of Eschol, and let thy lips be satisfied with the Bread of Life."

And Mary did as she was bid, and then she went up to the chamber of Peace.

And when the morning was come she awoke refreached by alumbar. There, too, were the sweet grapes of repentance, which were fully ripe, and Peace.

And when the morning was come she awoke refreshed by slumber. And opening her eyes she looked to the side of the chamber which opened to the east. And lof there was a cross, bright and shining, and behold, clinging to it was the silver thread of the King's love. And her beart was filled with gladness when the saw it. And King's love. And her heart was filled with gladness when she saw it. And she said, "My hands shall hold it, and wherever it leadeth me I will go." And she hastened and put on her white robe, and after that she had thanked she King for his mercy, she took hold of the thread and it drew her gently toward the door. And she went below and found the table spread and Duty sitting thereat. And when Duty saw the Child with the sliver thread in her hand, she knew that the King meant that the child should go on her journey.

saw the Child with the sliver thread in her hand, she knew that the King meant that the child should go on her journey.

And the thread stayed beside the table, and Mary sat down and did eat of the things prepared for her.

Then when her breakfast was over, Duty said: "I see that the King hath sent for thee. Thou hast done well since thou hast been with me." And Duty kissed Mary, and did put upon her shoulders the mantle of faithfulness. And she gave her the Bread of Divine Promises to eat by the way, and some of the water to drink which was drawn from the well of Salvation. And Mary said good by and went on her way. And the path through which she went was full of singing birds. And sometimes she heard the sound of voices, as of a great multitude singing, and sometimes there was the flash of wings, as if there were angels near her.

And the silver thread drew her in until she came to a twilight-land, that was full of sweet odors. And she heard soft whispers which were like music, yet could she not make out the words which were uttered. And lol the silver thread grew luminous, and lighted all the place where she stood. And she saw coming toward her one whose face was full of beauty and tenderness. And his garments were white as the light, and his voice was the sweetest of all God's creatures. And from his shoulders grew strong wings, such as might fly through all space without weariness. And from his shoulders grew strong wings, such as might fly through all space without weariness. And the sliver thread led her on with him, until they came to the banks of a great river. And here the darkness was all about them, and there was only light where they stood. And the thread drew Mary as if it would lead her over the river.

And she answered, "if it pleaseth thee to tell me it, then I should be glad."

And the angel said, "men call me Death, and this is the river over which we must pass to the life beyond. The King hath sent me for thy help. Cling fast to the silver thread, and though, we pass through the waters they shall not overflow thee."

And Mary said, "I am not atraid."

Then, while she held fast to the thread, Death took her in his arms and laid her head gently upon his bosom. And he spread his strong wings and bore her along above the dark tide of waters. And there was no light about them save that which shone from the silver thread which the King had given her. But the farther they moved away from the earth-shore the brighter shown the silver ribbon, and all its threads were like the threads of a lute full of the divinest melody. And when they were almost across it grew brighter and the darkness disappeared. And Mary saw all the banks lined with a multitude of angels, and each had a harp, or some instrument of music, which made sweeter melody than had ever before fallen upon her ears. And they sang a wondrous song, which was the Song of the Redeemed; and there was the sweetness of many odors borne from the Tree of Life, and the banks of the river, all the angels broke into a song of welcome, and, lifting her eyes, she saw above her the golden walls of the river, all the angels broke into a song of welcome, and, lifting her eyes, she saw above her the golden walls of the river, all the angels broke into a song of welcome, and, lifting her eyes, she saw above her the golden walls of the river, all the angels broke into a song of welcome, and lifting her eyes, she saw above her the golden walls of the river, all the angels broke into a song of the ledeemed; and the put on her a beautiful robe and a crown set with many stars. And He said, "Suffer the little children to come unto me.for of such is the kingdom of heaven." And they all entered into the city with gladness and rejeding, and the gazes were closed, and downward to t

ONE OF THE LITTLE FOLKS.

ABTESIA, April 7.

Dear Mrs. Otis: I read the children's corner with much pleasure, and I thought I would write you again, as you don't often hear from Artesia. We are now practicing for an Easter concert at the church, and I am going to take part in it. I have to sing and speak.

take part in it. I have to sing and speak.

I also must tell you about my nice pet cat. His name is Tim, and he weighs 12 pounds. I dress him in my dresses and play baby, and put him in my doll's carriage and ride him all around the ranch. I would not take a hundred dollars for him. I love him for his sweet disposition. I have nine dolls but love him the best.

Artesia is a nice little quiet village. We have one church, a store and a schoolhouse. We have no Chinamen or Spanish to bother us, and we all enjoy ourselves. I never saw a circus, so mamma has promised to let me come to Los Angeles this week to see one, and I am so much pleased at the thought of coming. My letter is long enough, so I will close. Yours truly,

MAUDIE M. CARPENTER.

He: It isn't real kissing. They don't do that in plays. It's only an imitation—it's stage kissing.

She (later in the evening): Don't you think, George, that a stage kiss must be—don't, George!—awfully—quit, George!—unsatisfactory?.

THE RARTH AND ITS INHABITANTS.—
AFRICA. By ELISEE RECLUS. Edited by A. H. Kenne, B. A., Voc-President Anthrop. Institute: cor. mem. Italian and Washington and Anthrop coclety; Profescor of Hindustant, University Coh. London; Author of Asia, etc.. Vol. IV.—South and Esst Africs. Illustrated by numerous engravings and maps. (New York: D. Appleton and Company.)
This volume is one of a comprehensity correct the character of shick is sive series, the character of which is made plain to the reader through its "The Earth and its Inhabitants." The present volume is devoted to the Dark Continent, and the information which it contains of that interesting, yet comparatively unknown region, cannot fail to be full of interest to the general reader. The physical features not fail to be full of interest to the general reader. The physical features of the country; its river systems; its climate; its flora and fauna; its inhabitants and mineral resources; its natural wealth; its lakes and mountains; its productions; its tribal peoples, colonies, administration, public instruction; its diamond fields, natural divisions, historical retrospect of its republics, and all that goes to make up the grand history of the country both in its past and present is intelligently dwelt upon by the author. The work is wide in its scope, and the different volumes comprise one of the most valuable additions that could be made to a home or public library. As a work of reference these volumes could have no superior, for they contain an epitome of the world as it is, both as relates to countries and peoples. The profuse Illustrations add to its general attractiveness. It is printed on fine paper, in bold, clear type and is handsomely bound in calf. In style the author is direct, clear, comprehensive, and to this is added a sufficient polish of diction to make him attractive. The work answers one of the demands of the age, when an intelligent knowledge of all countries is most eagerly sought after.

THE WORKS OF HUBERT HOWE BANCROPT. Vol. XVII. History of Arizona and New Mexico 1530-1588. (San Francisco: The History Company Publishers.)

The works of Mr. Bancroft are such as will win the gratitude, not only of the present, but of coming generations. Faithful in research; correct and careful in detail; comprehensive in scope, and charming in elegance of style; vivid in portrayal, and skilled in wordpainting, the author of these volumes of history has given to is in them a mine of information and intellectual wealth.

The present volume is not less interesting them those that have proceded.

mine of information and intellectual wealth.

The present volume is not less interesting than those that have preceded it, treating as it does of a section of our country destined to play no unimportant part in the future history of the Union—a vast, rich, but, as yet, thinly peopled territory, magnificent in the wide extent of its plains, rich in its mineral resources, and grand in its possibilities for development. As says the historian: the historian:

possibilities for development. As says the historian:

For several reasons the history of Arizona and New Mexico, particularly in the early times, is not surpassed in interest by that of any portion of the Pacific United States, or perhaps of the whole Republic. Notable among these reasons are the antiquity of these Territories as Spanish provinces—for they were the first to be occupied by Europeans, and ten years before the Pligrims landed at Plymouth Rock, a Historia de la Nueva Mexico was published; the peculiar pueblo civilization, second only to that of the Aztecs and Myas in the south, found among the aborigines of this land, and maintaining itself more nearly in its original conditions than elsewhere down to the present day; the air of romance pervading the country's early annals in connection with the Northern Mystery; quaint cosmographic theories, and the search for fabilious empires in Cihola, Tegranyo and Quevira, the ancient belief in the existence of immense mineral treasures as supplemented by the actual discovery of such treasures in modern times; the long and bloody struggle against raiding Apaches, the Ishmaelites of American aborigines; the peculiar circumstances under which this broad region fell into the hands of the United States; the facts that the eastern portion, unlike any other Territory of the Republic, is still inhabited mainly by a Spanish-speaking people; its position on the national frontier; its peculiarities of physical circumfiguration and climate; and, finally, the marvelous strides towards prosperity in the last decade of a country formerly regarded as an unpromising section of the Great American Desert.

Among other things treated of by the bistoriar, in this you was a flor review.

Among other things treated of by the historian in this volume after reviewing the early history of the two sections are their Indian and military affairs, industries and institutions; counties and towns; farms and ranches; Confederate invasion of New Mexico; Confederate invasion of THE WEEKLY MIRROR FOR ONE YEAR. slavery in the Territory; peonage; plots of Loring and Crittenden; Hun-ter's Arizona campaign; Confederate occupation of Albuquerque and Santa Fé; two battles in Apache Cañon; ar-rival of Californians; end of the war; Spanish and Mexican land grants; list of claims; public lands and surveys; agriculture; stock-raising; cattle and sheep; manufactures; trade; railroads; telegraph lines; stage and mail routes; schools; newspapers, church affairs, etc.

schools; newspapers, church affairs, etc.

The careful and intelligent reader of this volume will feel himself quite familiar with the past and present of these Territories as he completes the perusal of its pages.

LOS ANGELES ILLUSTRATED.—In ALBERTYPE. Copyright, 1899, by STOLL & THAYER, 47 Spring street, Los Angeles, (The Albertype Co., New York.)

This little volume presents a large number of most pleasing views in and about Los Angeles. The pictures are charmingly printed and arranged, and form a most attractive epitome of the beauty of the architecture of Los Angeles, as displayed in her homes and public buildings. There are also glimpses of her gardens, her parks, her wealth of tree and shrub, her orange blooms and her palms, and of those gray and hoary monuments of an earlier civilization—the old Missions. blooms and her palms, and of those gray and hoary monuments of an earlier civilization—the old Missions. Glimpses of her ocean beach are also given; views of old orange orchards with their ripened fruit, and the biossoming wealth of her winter gardens. Pampas plumes and century plants add a quaint beauty to its views, and it is one of the pretiest souvenirs of Los Angeles that could be sent abroad to advertise the attractions of this section.

Magazines.
The Home Maker for April is somewhat tardy in its arrival, but is none the less welcome in its coming, for its pages are filled with grand things, such as will be most highly appreciated by those to whom the delightful work of home-making belongs. The editorial glance at the "Then and Now," is a familiar talk of people and things which will interest the general reader. "Hope Harding" is a delightful story, which one regrets to see after its closing sentence, "to be continued," written, so eager is the reader to know the ending of the "old, old story." "Pet Love for Pet Lovers" will charm those for whom it was especially written, and every lover of Nature will lose himself in the chapter on "Cactuses" from the well-known pen of A. Blanc. Then there is the suggestive talks from different able pens on "One Way to Clean House," "Cheap Living in Cities." "Some Curious Easter Dishes," "Soup Making," "Care of the Toilet," "Physical Culture at Home," and, indeed, almost everything of interest to the household. Last evening Mrs. Goodfriend came to the police station to have a neighbor named Eberle arrested for slapping her son, a boy aged 6 or 8 years. The affair grew out of a neighbor's row. The lady was told that she would have to get a warrant for Eberle's arrest, when she said that she would be on hand promptly this morning and get one.

Yesterday morning a woman who lives out on the Cahuenga road came to the police station for protection, saying that a man named Jacob Brundersheib had threatened her life, and she was afraid to remain in her house while he was at large. She was sent upstairs to Justice Stanton, who issued a warrant for Brundersheib's arrest, and he was brought in by Officer Sanchez about noon and locked up for the day.

He was taken to the police station for medical treatment. The runaway started out near the St. Vincent's College, and ran the whole distance to Temple street, but did no damage beyond what is above stated.

What came very near being a serious accident occurred on the Second street cable road last evening, between 7 and 8 o'clock. A loaded trian was coming down the hill, and just as the dummy struck Olive street the front trucks went out, letting the car down on the track, and stopping it instantly, the shock throwing the passengers off into the street. There were quite a number of persons on board the dummy including several ladies, but very fortunately no one was hurt seriously, although three or four were somewhat bruised up. Had the break-down occurred on the steep grade, the result would doubtless have been quite different.

RECKLESS ARRESTS.

Complaint of the Peculiar Work of me Policemen

Harvey Branscomb, a livery-stable keeper at the corner of Alameda and Turner streets, was very indignant Turner streets, was very indignant yesterday over what he considered an outrage perpetrated on one of his employes by two members of the police force, and if the facts are as he alleges he has good grounds for complaint. Mr. Branscomb says that about 10 o'clock Saturday night he sent one of his employes, Sam Mullen, a young man who has been working for him for the past two years, up town for some medicine for a sick horse. Mullen, he says, did not get back to the stable until after 12 o'clock, when he told him that he had been arrested. He said that as he was coming up Requens street, when near Hawley's building, a couple of policemen ran up and grabbed him, at the same time putting handcuffs on him. Mullen protested against this treatment, and wanted to know what he was arrested for, saying that he could identify himself. He said that the policemen refused to listen to him, saying that they wanted him: that he must keep his mouth shut and go with them to the police station. He did so, and after being kept at the station for an hour or two was released and allowed to go home.

Mr. Branscomb said that he went to esterday over what he considered an or two was released and allowed to go home.

Mr. Branscomb said that he went to the police station yesterday morning to make a complaint to the Chief, but that neither he nor the captain was in at the time. He says that this is not the first time that this sort of thing has been done in his neighborhood, and he wants it stopped. He says that about a week ago an old resident and property-owner was arrested as a "vag" and kept at the station an hour or two before an, one came in to identify him, when he was released.

At the police station nothing was known about the affair. Clerk Biles and Capt. Harris were at the station until 12 o'clock, and they say that nothing of that kind was mentioned.

The case will probably come up before the Police Commissioners for investigation.

We take pleasure in announcing to the public that we combine the Compound Oxygen Treatment with our system of practice in the cure of asthma, bronchitis, consumption, dyspepsia, insounds, sore throat, catarrh, rheumanism and nervous prostration.

The testimoniats given below are very fair samples as to the time required for effecting ourse in these troublesome cases:

LOS ANGELES, CAL, Nov 14, 1888.

This is to certify that I had been afflicted with asthma and emphysims of the lungs for about 24 years. My disease was constructed in the army. I had tried almost every known remedy, both here and in the East, but nothing ever gave me permanent re lof until I tried Dr Williams's Compound Oxygen and other remedies. It is only about one month since I began the treatment, and already I feel like another mas. I was so bad that for days I could hardly breathe, but I do positively feel that I am cured. The difficulty of breathing has been entirely removed, and I feel as well as I ever did in every respect.

I have seen so many of these cases cured that I do not consider any case hopeless unless both lungs are seriously involved.
